ATOMIC BOMB
SECRET LEAKS
TRACED DOWNSPY INSTRUCTIONS
CAME DIRECTLY FROM MOSCOW

BY HARRY T. MONTGOMERY
Ottawa, March 4 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced today that Canada's espionage inquiry had produced evidence that Soviet and Canadian agents, operating under "direct instructions from Moscow," had formed a "network" to obtain information on American troop movements, and highly confidential wartime scientific data on the atomic bomb and radar.

Col. Nicolai Zabotin, military attaché of the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, was declared to have been in charge of the operations in Canada, working with other members of the embassy staff and with employees of the Canadian government and a woman in the office of the United Kingdom high commissioner's office, which is Britain's counterpart of an embassy here.

Woman Pleads Guilty
The British woman and three Canadian government employees had been charged with conspiracy and violation of Canada's official secret acts. It was announced.

They were arraigned today, and only one—Mrs. Emma Wolkyn, employed by the Canadian government—pleaded guilty. The others did not enter a plea. They faced a maximum penalty of seven years imprisonment.

The prime minister made public an interim report of the two-man royal commission conducting the espionage inquiry. It was the first detailed announcement of the nature of the espionage activity, disclosure of which, on Feb. 15 resulted in Moscow's charging the Canadian government with conducting an "unbridled anti-Soviet campaign."

The royal commission's report made these main points:

1. "The evidence establishes that a network of undercover agents has been organized and developed for the purpose of obtaining secret and confidential information particularly from employees of departments and agencies of the Dominion government and from an employee of the office of the high commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada."

2. "These operations were carried on by certain members of the staff of the Soviet embassy at Ottawa under direct instructions from Moscow." Col. Zabotin was assisted by Lt. Col. Motinov, chief assistant military attaché, Lt. Col. Rogov, assistant military attaché for air, Maj. Sokolov, of the commercial counsellor's staff, Lt. Angelov, a secretary, and "other

Gunmen Rob Detroit
Drug Store; Sales
Are Uninterrupted

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—While more than 200 unsuspecting customers came and went, four men robbed a drug store of $125 today, according to police reports.

William A. Oehring, 60, a clerk, said he was ordered to wait on the customers as two armed bandits covered him from the rear of the store. The others helped themselves to money from the cash register and made an unsuccessful effort to open a safe in a rear room.

A second clerk, Mrs. Stella Gray, 23, reported for work while the men were in the store and was made to stand in a corner, detectives said.

SCENE OF DOUBLE MURDER — Shown above is the abandoned stone mill building near Bloomington, Ind., named by a negro handyman as the spot where he murdered Russell E. Koontz, 43, manager of a Bloomington stone company, and Mrs. Phyllis Coleman, 32, creamery office employee. The negro, Joseph Luther Woolridge, 29, said that he killed Koontz as the latter lunged at him after he came upon the couple in the deserted mill, and that he later choked the woman to death with a rope.

Negro Handyman, 29,
Admits Killing Pair
In Abandoned Mill

Bloomington, Ind., March 4 (AP)—Joseph Luther Woolridge, 29-year-old negro handyman in a Bloomington cafe, was charged with first degree murder today in the death of Mrs. Phyllis Coleman, whose body, with that of Russell E. Koontz, was found in an abandoned stone mill last Friday.

The charge was filed by Coroner R. J. Kane, soon after. Sheriff Albert H. Skirvin and state police had made public a confession which they said Woolridge had signed at state police headquarters in Indianapolis. Woolridge said in the confession he killed Koontz as the latter lunged at him.

The statement, as given out by the officers, contained complete details of the double slaying of Koontz, 43-year-old general manager of the Empire Stone Company of Bloomington, and 32-year-old Mrs. Coleman, chestnut haired office employee in a local creamery. Both were married and both were associated with the choir of the Clear Creek Christian church, where Koontz resigned as Sunday school superintendent recently.

Woolridge related that he had stopped in the old mill while groundhog hunting last Friday afternoon and came upon Koontz and Mrs. Coleman in a compromising position.

"I ducked and at the same time I picked up a window sash weight and swung at the man and hit the man on the back of the head as he went past me," the statement continued.

The negro's statement said the blow knocked Koontz out and that he left the man on the floor and tied up the woman. He said the woman did not resist.

He returned to Koontz, he said, and found that he was dead. "At this point I was scared and didn't know what to do," the statement went on. "I walked all around on the inside of the building and finally decided that since the man was dead I would have to also dispose of the woman because she was a witness to the fight."

Appeals by the president himself, the Democratic national chairman, Robert E. Hannegan, and the economic high command failed to hold enough Democrats in line.

The plan, which would have authorized $600,000,000 of subsidy payments to encourage greater production of building materials, was defeated on a teller vote of 161 to 92. No record is made on such a vote. As the membership marched past the tellers to be counted, at least 40 southern Democrats were noted in opposition, and not a single Republican was observed voting for the subsidy.

Before the voting commenced, Mr. Truman called his congressional leaders to the White House and pleaded anew for a strong housing bill. He also asked for early congressional action on extending OPA another year and raising the nation's minimum wage from 40 cents an hour to 65 cents.

Wilson W. Wyatt, housing expediter, said the goal of 2,700,000 homes in two years, constructed by private industry, could not be attained without the subsidy payments.

Red Cross Provides Serum For Measles

Lansing, March 4 (AP)—To combat a growing measles epidemic in Michigan, the American Red Cross has promised to provide additional gamma biogulin serums, the state health department reported today.

Dr. William DeKleine, commissioner, said physicians' requests for the serum exceeded the state supply. He said the number of measles cases this year has reached 9,418, compared with 192 last year.

WORST AIRLINER
CRASH KILLS 27Bodies Of 2 Tiny Babies
Removed From Wreck
On Mountain-Side

San Diego, Calif., March 4 (AP)—The bodies of two babies, so small that they were not even listed individually as passengers, were the first of 27 victims removed today from the mountain-side wreckage of the nation's worst commercial airliner crash.

The infants—a two-months-old boy and an 18-month-old girl—were found crushed and burned in the twisted debris of the American Airlines passenger plane.

They were hauled from their mothers' laps to become part of the "mess of flesh and metal"—as one early arrival on the scene expressed it—when the plane hit the fog-hidden peak 45 miles East of here yesterday.

Another touching discovery that dimmed the eyes of sheriff's deputies and navy sailors in the removal party was a pocket Bible.

Found clear of the flames, it bore on the fly leaf: "To Lt. John Eugene Selover (young navy officer among the dead) from his mother, 1945."

The remains of the infants—daughter of Mrs. R. L. McCall of Tampa, Fla., and son of Mrs. Margaret Greener of Forest City, Ark.—were brought to a San Diego mortuary.

Bodies of the mothers and the eight other women and 15 male victims were carried half a mile on litters to navy jeeps which took them two miles further along a bulldozed road to waiting ambulances.

The liner was enroute from Dallas, Tex., to San Diego on a New York to Los Angeles run. Among crew members aboard the fatal ship was Stewardess Maxine Rickard, whose parents live in Detroit.

BRIDE-TO-BE IS KILLED
Burbank, Calif., March 4 (AP)—Maxine Rickard, pretty stewardess killed when a plane crashed east of San Diego Sunday, and C. W. Grigg, American Airlines co-pilot, had planned to be married next week. Grigg flew to San Diego today to claim the body of his fiancée, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rickard, 9 Woodland avenue, Detroit.

'Day Of Mourning' Brings On Riots In Alexandria Streets
Cairo, March 4 (AP)—Fifteen Egyptians were slain by gunfire, two British military policemen were beaten to death and 301 persons were wounded today in rioting during "day of mourning" demonstrations in Alexandria, an official Egyptian communiqué said tonight.

The wounded were listed as 229 Egyptians and two British soldiers. In Cairo, official sources said, 600 persons were arrested by police patrols which kept large crowds from forming.

Prime Minister Ismail Sidki Pasha said in the communiqué that "police were obliged to fire" after rioters stoned Egyptian police and British troops.

Violent fighting in Egypt's chief port city broke out during the demonstrations for some 15 Egyptians killed last week in anti-British rioting in Cairo.

CARDINALS LEAVE
Limerick, Eire, March 4 (AP)—Edward Cardinal Mooney of Detroit and Cardinal Cardinal Stritch of Chicago left by plane from Rincanna airport near here at 5 p. m. today (noon E. S. T.) en route for the United States.

EFFORT MADE TO STAVE OFF
PHONE STRIKEUNION LEADERS ARE SUMMONED TO WASHINGTON

New York, March 4 (AP)—Another last-minute effort to head off a nationwide telephone tieup was made late today when Edgar L. Warren, director of the U. S. Conciliation Service, summoned leaders of the Federation of Long Lines Telephone Workers, and the American Telephone and Telegraph company to a conference in Washington at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The summons followed by a few hours assertions by union leaders that the walkout, set for 6 a. m. Thursday, would begin as scheduled, after another meeting over wages ended early today without agreement.

The Federation of Long Lines Telephone Workers is the key group in the National Federation of Telephone Workers (Ind.).

When today's meeting ended, John J. Moran, president of Long Lines Federation, said:

"The union's demands of 18½ cents per hour, which have not been met up until now, and the company's offer of approximately 15 cents, leave us with but one alternative and that is to complete our arrangements for a strike."

Hope For Settlement

In Washington, Edgar L. Warren, U. S. Conciliation director, said he hoped to avert a shutdown of long distance and local operator service either by settlement before Thursday or through adoption of other procedure.

Moran, in his statements here, asserted any other moves would be up to the company or Washington. He said the Long Lines Union would accept an invitation to meet with Lewis B. Schwelbach, secretary of labor, but added:

"I do not see what purpose is to be gained unless the company has some better offer."

The work stoppage by the long lines employees would halt trans-oceanic service, long distance calls and possibly would affect tele-type and telegraph circuits. However, A. T. & T. has said it hoped to maintain some services, such as to radio stations, press associations and newspapers.

A spokesman for the company said 65 percent of the nation's telephones were on a dial system. These would not be affected by the walkout, but should mechanical troubles develop no maintenance men would be available for repairs.

SET FOR 6 A. M.

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—Mrs. Francis Smith, president of the Michigan Telephone Operators' Union, said today the members would walk out Thursday in support of the national strike unless the 50 telephone unions throughout the nation are granted an 18½ cent hourly wage increase.

"Even if we settled for that amount here," she said, "we'd take

Balks At Shorts,
Senior May Flunk

Blue Mound, Ill., March 4 (AP)—Dollie True, 18, may not graduate from high school this June because she will not wear shorts in physical education class, and a 16-year-old sophomore sister, Teresa, faces a like predicament, their father declares.

Albert True, a painter and paper hanger, said: "We object to our daughters entering the program because they are required to wear shorts."

"Our objections are based on grounds of decency," he added. "My girls don't wear shorts at home and they don't want to do it in public."

I. J. Laws, high school principal, wrote True that a state law required that pupils take physical education unless they present a physician's certificate exempting them. He said the Blue Mound school board would not graduate either girl if they failed to meet requirements set up for graduation.

Weather Confusing,
Forecaster Admits

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—The weatherman hemmed and hawed here tonight and finally closed up like an out-of-season clam.

He refused to guess at Michigan's upcoming weather. "It may get warmer," he said, or it may get colder, maybe it won't. The weather bureau suggested another query Tuesday when it hopes to be a little more definite.

A low pressure area in Texas is causing meteorological confusion, the forecaster explained.

State Corruption
Quiz Halted, Pay
Of Sigler Cut Off

BY ROBERTA APPLEGATE

Lansing, March 4 (AP)—Special Prosecutor Kim Sigler today received in silence the decision of Judge Louis E. Coash, Ingham county's one man grand juror, suspending all grand jury activities and stopping salary payments to Sigler and other grand jury aides.

Judge Coash said the suspension order would be in effect while he made his own determination of the "propriety" of grand jury expenditures, the target of criticism by a Senate investigating committee.

"There is no question at all of closing grand jury work, I am merely holding it in abeyance," Judge Coash declared.

Sigler said he had "no comment" at this time on the action, but "would have plenty to say when the time comes."

The grand jury has been investigating charges of corruption in state government since late in 1943 and 39 legislators, lobbyists and businessmen have been convicted in trials resulting from the investigation.

The Senate committee, headed by Senator Ivan A. Johnston of Mt. Clemens, is scheduled to go into secret session tonight. Last

GERMAN GIRLS
IN U. S. BILLETTSOvernight 'Visits' Are Not Prohibited By Army Orders

BY RICHARD O'REGAN

Frankfurt, Germany, March 4 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Miller G. White, commenting on reports that German girls were allowed to "live" with U. S. officers in their bachelor quarters here, said tonight there is no army regulation to stop a man from entertaining a girl overnight in his private quarters.

White, deputy chief of staff in Europe, declared, however, that the army probably would investigate the reports immediately and tighten up on regulations.

He added that he did not intend to read the billets, where officers and civilians live within the U. S. Forces headquarters compound, but that if individual cases were reported the army probably would take strict disciplinary action.

White said he did not believe that "by and large our military or civilian personnel are immoral or indecent" and said he resented the implications that every officer was immoral if he brought a girl, whether German or English, into the compound.

Officers and civilians living in the compound, a barbed wire enclosed area of several square miles, are permitted to take guests inside anytime except between 10:30 p. m. and 8:30 a. m. On weekends girls are permitted to stay in the compound over Sunday, but must leave early Monday morning. An officer must sign his guest in and out.

Sgt. Dennis Moore of Cleveland said "the strangest thing I ever saw was the registration of a male German by an UNRRA dame."

Lt. G. I. Stoickert of Queens Village, N. Y., said "the youngest (German) girl registered was 14."

Honeymoon Spoiler — Given Prison Term

Grand Rapids, March 3 (AP)—Calvin Jones, 39, who interrupted an East Lansing couple's honeymoon in 1942 when he stole their automobile and $1,500 in wedding and Christmas gifts, today was sentenced to serve one to 15 years in prison on a larceny charge growing out of the theft.

Jones was returned to Grand Rapids to face a charge of stealing the presents after serving 31 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., for stealing a car belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Vlack of East Lansing who had stopped at a Grand Rapids hotel where Jones was a bellhop.

CHUCKLE FOR BOWLES

The wire, from Detroit, was signed only with the initials J. B. A.

SECRET VOTE IS SOUGHT ON
ENDING STRIKETWO ALTERNATIVES
SUGGESTED FOR UAW BALLOT

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—The CIO Auto Workers today qualifiedly accepted General Motors proposal of a secret ballot on the question of ending the 104-day-old strike.

The union proposed to General Motors that the strikers in their vote be permitted to choose between two alternatives as follows:

1.—Do you favor returning to work and ending the current dispute on the basis of the corporation's 18½ cent wage increase offer and its latest proposals on basic contract matters, or

2.—Do you favor returning to work on the basis of the corporation's 18½ cent wage increase offer and its latest proposals on basic contract matters with the understanding that all issues still in dispute shall be submitted to arbitration by an arbitrator appointed by the president of the United States?

No Reply Yet
The striking union submitted its new proposal to General Motors at a negotiation session at 5:30 p. m. EST today. General Motors made no immediate reply.

The proposal, under which 175,000 strikers might return to work followed upon an exchange of peace propositions over the week-end.

First the union offered to quit its walkout and return in the basis of the 18½ cent wage increase provided General Motors would submit the complete dispute, to an arbitrator who would be named by President Truman.

Rejecting this proposal, General Motors countered with one of its own calling for a secret ballot by the strikers as to whether they would be willing to go back to the job for the 18½ cents increase, and General Motors concessions on other points. General Motors has called its 18½ cent proposal its "absolutely final" offer. The union has demanded 19½ cents.

In setting forth its new proposal, the union told General Motors that it felt its suggestion was the "only way possible to determine the wishes of General Motors workers."

The proposal was embraced in a letter to President C. E. Wilson of GM and was presented in that form at the negotiation meeting.

More Delay Feared
"Your proposal," the UAW-CIO told GM, "is incomplete."

Your proposition is that the GM voters vote merely as to whether they wish to accept the corporation's last offer and return to work on that basis.

"If the workers vote to turn down that proposition, we are still at the same impasse. In fact settlement of the strike will have been delayed by as many days as it takes to arrange the mechanics of balloting, since obviously the corporation will make no further offers in collective bargaining until the results of the vote are known."

"Our proposition makes possible an immediate return to work as soon as the results are known."

Harry W. Anderson, GM vice-president in charge of personnel said that the company would take the union's plan under consideration but decline to specify on when an answer might be expected.

Anderson declined to comment further, and said he did not know

EXPECT PROFIT IN USED CARS

But Trade-In Units May Not Be Available
For 18 Months

By DAVY J. WILKIE
(AP) Automotive Editor
Detroit, March 2 (AP)—The merchandising division of the automobile industry is looking forward to a boom and profitable used car market—when sizeable stocks of second-hand vehicles materialize.

When the trade-in units will become available in large numbers depends, according to industry experts, on two factors:

1. Early attainment of high volume output of new models.
2. Sustained demand for new cars despite steadily mounting prices.

Much has been said over the last year of a tremendous backlog of new car demand piled up during the war when no new civilian automobiles were made. The estimates ranged upward of 12,000,000 units, with one governmental agency placing the figure at more than 17,000,000.

8 Million Units

The car makers, however, realize that the estimated demand—at that level—is potential rather than real. In other words, from 12,000,000 to 17,000,000 persons probably would like to have new cars, but they do not actually need them immediately.

The figures are equal to from one-half to slightly more than two-thirds the number of passenger automobiles now in use.

The industry undoubtedly can sell all the passenger cars it will be able to make in the next 18 months. Under the most favorable conditions, however, they cannot expect to assemble more than 8,000,000 units in that period.

That total probably more nearly represents the actual requirements of the motoring public over the next year and a half. The car makers may have that fact in mind when they say it probably will be "about 15 months" before the average motorist can go into an automobile dealership and buy a new car for immediate delivery.

May Boost Prices

Also in their forward planning is the very real possibility that increased retail prices may delay buying by those motorists who would like to have new cars but do not actually need them. During the war years there were many in the motorcar industry who predicted the post war automobiles would cost 25 per cent more than their pre-war counterparts.

There are just about as many who believe that when increased labor and materials costs have been reflected in retail prices the rise will be at least 25 per cent.

All this will affect the used car market. Until new vehicles are available in volume relatively few second-hand cars will reach the dealers. Collaterally, there cannot be much of a new car market without a well organized used vehicle merchandising program.

It long has been said that the whole scheme of volume production and distribution of the nation's automobile industry is possible only because there is a used car market. Millions of motorists can afford new cars periodically only because the cash outlay involved amounts to but a few hundred dollars plus a used model.

If all sales were on a full cash basis annual assemblies and purchases would be counted in the thousands instead of millions.

Proposed Abdication Of Hirohito Stirs Argument

By RUSSELL BRINES
Tokyo, Sunday, Mar. 3 (AP)—Imperial princes and leading court officials are divided over the question of the emperor's abdication, a high court official told The Associated Press.

The emperor has indicated he favors retirement when the time is considered appropriate. Such a move would be made to accept responsibility for his share of the war and not to forestall possible arrest as a war criminal, this source insisted.

Proponents of abdication believe that Hirohito was "a moral and spiritual responsibility" for the war.

Even highly-placed Japanese, however, are unable to decide the emperor's direct connection with origins of the conflict because so many official documents have been destroyed, and recollections of the participants in the major if an answer would be ready for tomorrow's negotiations at 2 p. m. When asked if he thought anything could be worked out on the basis of the union's proposal Anderson said, "I do not know."

Nothing To Arbitrate

The week-end that brought the strike into its 104th day was marked by additional sharp exchanges between management and union.

Rejecting the union arbitration proposal GM said its offer of an 18½ cents an hour increase was within the pattern now established in the steel industry, the automobile industry and many other industries.

What then is there to arbitrate? the management asked.

Earlier in a news conference, H. W. Anderson, GM vice-president, charged union politics, on the eve of the UAW-CIO national convention, "stands in the way of a settlement."

This brought a sharp denial from union officials and a statement by President R. J. Thomas and Vice-President Walter P. Reuther that General Motors did not "dare" to arbitrate. Thomas suggested that the management's referendum proposal "is probably an infraction of the National Labor Relations Act."

Approximately 38,000 Ford Motor Co. employees, laid off over the last month because of the steel strike returned to their jobs manufacturing parts today. Company officials said car assemblies probably will be resumed next Monday.

The Detroit city council today approved an appropriation of $400,000 for the City Welfare Fund, after a report that 1,240 of the 1,522 new welfare cases last month represented General Motors workers.

In Flint, Mich., where approximately 50,000 of the GM strikers reside, relief rolls have increased from 500 families just prior to the strike to slightly more than 2,500 today. The relief allowance averages $38.06 monthly to a family.

New Flour Cheaper, Makes Good Cakes

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—You can quit worrying about your nice, light cakes and bread when you have to use "gray" flour.

That's the word from Norman Vollmerhouse, president of the Detroit Association of Retail Bakers. He tried out the new 80 percent extraction flour at his bakery today and reported, "The public won't know the difference."

"Imperceptible" was his word for the difference in color and texture between the old and the new flour. In performance, he said, the new flour measures up in every way.

Lester Auld of a milling company who helped in the tests said the new flour may be available in retail stores in small quantities next week. He said it would cost 90 cents less per 100-pound sack and provide higher nutritional value than the old.

prewar developments are so confusing.

Another group around the throne argues that the cabinet ministers, not the emperor, are responsible, therefore Hirohito should remain.

Hirohito is aware of this controversy. Shortly after broadcasting his surrender message, the emperor told intimates, "I want to take full responsibility" for the war, my source said.

Abdication would place the 12-year-old Crown Prince Akihito on the throne, governing through a regency. Prince Chichibu, the emperor's first brother, would be the logical regent but he is recovering slowly from tuberculosis. Prince Takamatsu, 41, second brother of the emperor, probably would be regent.

Proponents of abdication believe the emperor's duty of fulfilling the terms of the Potsdam declaration will be completed upon signing the peace treaty. However, they have expressed the opinion that if the peace signing is delayed too long, the emperor should abdicate beforehand and, in any case, should resign immediately after this ceremony.

My informant expressed the opinion that a sudden abdication would be "a severe shock" to the Japanese people and might cause considerable confusion. But proponents of retirement have informed the throne that the people could assimilate this shock if abdication plans were announced sufficiently in advance.

The final decision may be made by the emperor. In any case he has expressed the belief that a definite and complete change is being made in the court and that no important group advocates retention of the imperial prerogatives as they were before the war.

There are two schools of thought in court circles on the future of the throne—one that it be patterned closely after that of England, the other that the emperor retire completely from all association with political matters, remaining solely as the spiritual head of the state.

Some sources discussing the opposing court theories on abdication say that many imperial princes favor the emperor's retirement. It was said these include Prince Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni, premier at the time of the occupation.

Shortly after resigning the premiership last October, the same sources said, Higashi-Kuni offered in an interview with the emperor to relinquish his rank and at the same time proposed abdication. Both of these suggestions were declined then because "the time was not yet ripe."

Iran Has Rioting In Political Crisis Caused By Russians

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

Tehran, March 4 (AP)—Rioting broke out today in the midst of Iran's political crisis, now in its fourth day as a result of Russia's refusal to withdraw her troops from northern Iran in accordance with the British-Russian-Iranian treaty of 1942.

The fighting started during a demonstration staged by the leftist Tudeh party and was blamed by leaders on "rightists." Witnesses said someone in the crowd of 2,000 to 3,000 touched off the clash by shouting "Death to the Tudehs!"

Meanwhile, there were no signs that the crisis was easing.

A cabinet member said the ministers had met twice on Russia's decision to keep troops in areas she regards as "disturbed." He added that the cabinet "felt it unwise to form any opinion" until the return of Premier Ahmed Qavam Es Saltaneh from Moscow. He is expected in Tehran within a few days.

(A British foreign office spokesman said Great Britain had asked Russia to explain her refusal to withdraw her troops in accordance with the treaty which provided that all foreign troops should leave Iranian soil by March 2.)

Resume Hunt For Bormann, Missing Deputy Of Hitler

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Konstanz, Germany, Mar. 4 (AP)—Interest in the fate of Hitler's missing deputy, Martin Bormann, has been revived by reports from German civilians in the French-ruled mountains bordering Switzerland and Austria.

Bormann supposedly was killed while attempting to escape from doomed Berlin; but investigations by intelligence officers of the three western allied powers still are open. The new reports say Bormann has been seen riding a motorbike from Bregenz, Wald, a mountainous frontier corner of Germany, to Konstanz to visit his girl friend.

Other Germans said they saw Bormann board a bus several weeks ago at the Black Forest Winter Sports Haven of Titisee. They "thought" he had come down from the wild, snowy country surrounding the nearby village of Schulse where the Bormann family chalet is situated.

But at Schulse townsfolk said Bormann never had been seen in the vicinity, although Frau Bormann and her children used to visit the chalet until her death near Berlin in 1944. The villa now is used as a dormitory for 12 French women working for the military government.

In building the chalet about four years ago, Bormann seemed to have a hideout in mind. It is in a lonely mountain spot, far removed from bomber routes, and a deep underground bunker is its main feature. Sealed off from the house by a heavy iron door is a passageway leading from the basement to a comfortable, gas proof bunker equipped with electric heating, cooking, and air conditioning facilities and an elaborate escape tunnel.

During the war Bormann, who succeeded Rudolf Hess as deputy fuhrer, remained in the background as far as publicity was concerned and thus was not as well known as other Nazi leaders. But the Germans in the French zone seem to have a curious respect for him, whereas they have none for Hitler. Many of his pictures were found by French forces when they took over the Black Forest area and some still hang on the walls in out-of-the-way chalets and guesthouses.

French and Germans alike discount a recent report that Bormann landed in South America from a U-boat and one officer even suggested that Bormann was in a position to plant such a story himself.

"I would take two battalions to begin an organized hunt for him," the officer said, "and he would be tipped off at once and flee somewhere else."

Those who give credence to the Bormann rumors believe he is travelling under at least five aliases, but usually as a Swiss businessman, and has papers which permit him to skip around the Swiss-Austrian-German Frontiers.

Wife Shot, Detroit Man Kills Himself

Detroit, March 4 (AP)—Floyd E. Ramsey was dead and his wife, Essie, was in serious condition today as the result of what Police Chief Floyd M. Crichton of suburban Lincoln Park termed an attempted murder and suicide.

Crichton said Mrs. Ramsey told him she was struck in the back by a rifle bullet fired Sunday by her husband. As she lay on the floor, he quoted her as saying, she heard Ramsey fire another bullet into his own head, killing himself almost instantly.

Aches And Pains Keep Dizzy Trout On Rubbing Table

Lakeland, Fla., March 4 (AP)—Paul (Dizzy) Trout, a 20-game winner in the American league for two straight years before a combination of ailments cut him down to 18 last season, chiefly from lack of work, believes his lame back won't be bothering him in 1946, but he has more than his share of minor pains and aches in the Detroit Tigers' spring camp.

Because Dizzy, the Hoosier workhorse, is determined to get into shape quickly, he's Trainer Jack Home's No. 1 customer on the rubbing table.

Pitching batting practice almost daily to strengthen his arm; running and running again to build up his legs, Trout has hardly a muscle that isn't stiff and sore.

"My back is stiff, my arm is stiff, my shoulder's sore, my legs are sore—I've even got blisters on my toes," Dizzy groaned at the windup of one of the Tigers' early Lakeland workouts.

"To tell you the truth, I believe the only thing about me that isn't stiff and sore is my hair."

Truman Takes Train Throttle; Churchill On Missouri Jaunt

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Aboard Truman-Churchill Train Enroute to Missouri, March 4 (AP)—President Truman, donned the engineer's cap and took a turn today at the throttle of the Diesel-powered train taking him and Winston Churchill to Missouri.

The president inspected the whole train and shook hands with just about everyone aboard, while Churchill remained in their special car. While chatting with the engineer, J. L. Rock of Baltimore, the fireman, C. J. Harry of Lansdale, Md., and the conductor, E. M. Marcum, Mr. Truman sat at the throttle to see, he said, how they ran the train.

The president and the former prime minister will make a joint public appearance significant for the future of American-British collaboration.

The president set the pitch a few hours before the special train set out, with a new and strongly worded endorsement of the British loan agreement as "a cornerstone in the world's structure of peace."

Los Angeles, March 4 (AP)—Representatives of Howard Hughes said the aviator set a non-stop commercial passenger plane record from New York to Los Angeles when he landed a four-engine Constellation at suburban Culver City today, 10 hours and 15 minutes after taking off from La Guardia field.

The TVA plane left New York at 4:48 (EST) this morning and landed at the Hughes Aircraft Co. field at 12:03 p. m. (PST). This broke the record of 10:49 minutes set by a Lockheed Constellation over the route Feb. 1.

Powers Will Have Plastics Factory

With a view of bringing a plastic factory to Powers, the village council there has under consideration a petition from taxpayers approving expenditure of about $3,000 to repair and put into condition the old Menominee county road commission's warehouse which the county board of supervisors decided to the village of Powers for $1 last week.

The plastic factory and tool shop will be started, provided the village council acts favorably on the plan to put the building into condition, by Charles Dempsky, Charles Neal and Glenn Urey, all of Detroit, who were in Powers early this week to confer with taxpayers interested.

They proposed the building be repaired and leased to them for five years with an option to buy. All three men are expert tool and pattern makers and are now engaged in plastic work in Detroit. They would move their Detroit equipment to Powers and start with an initial payroll of about 10 men.

Plans for remodeling the warehouse will be submitted to contractors who will be asked to bid on the work, after which the matter will be formally presented to the village council for action.

In another Powers business deal, Leo Pietsch of Wausaukee, who formerly managed the Gamble store in Powers, purchased the Milton Kell store building and warehouse and will open a business in hardware, farm supplies and electrical appliances. He expects to be open for business by April 1.

Hatchery Trout To Be Bigger, Better

Lansing—Hatchery-reared rainbow trout that are firmer-fleshed, gamier, and more highly colored than their wild cousins are being produced for Michigan anglers.

The conservation department's Harrietta hatchery west of Cadillac is handling a million rainbow trout eggs this winter. The eggs are taken from fish that have been produced by selective breeding over a period of years and that possess superior resistance to disease, have better than average color, faster growth rate, and are large producers of eggs.

Most of the hatchery-reared rainbows will be held until they reach legal size, in line with the department's new policy of stocking waters with adult fish.

Coal Strike Looms

IF A crackpot set out to harass and impede America's ability to reconvert to peacetime production, he would first organize a strike in the nation's automobile industry to which the nation's entire production program is geared. Next he would develop a strike in the steel industry and would follow that with a strike in the coal mining industry. Finally he would climax his impish plan with a strike that would tie up the nation's railroads.

Even without the "help" of a devilish crackpot, we find ourselves today following this very pattern for industrial impotency. The automobile strike is still with us, even though the steel strike, which started later, has been settled throughout most of the industry.

Settlement of the steel strike, however, will mean nothing if the coal strike develops, as now appears inevitable. Steel furnaces will be forced to close again for lack of fuel. Whether the rail transportation strike actually develops is still uncertain, but at least the threat is still there and gaining in importance with every passing day.

All of the strikes in the major industries to date have been extremely harmful to the reconversion program, but the threatened coal strikes tops them all for the potency of its impact on industrial production. Without coal, there can be no steel, or very little, and the railroad system will be seriously endangered by any prolonged strike in the mines.

This labor trouble may be even more difficult to solve than the other major labor disputes that have plagued the nation in recent months because the coal industry is in competition with oil and gas fuels, a factor that must be considered in wage negotiations in the coal industry. Moreover, the mine operators and the United Mine Workers constitute about as close to irreconcilable forces as one could imagine in the field of employee-employer relationship.

Little Industries

ONE of the significant postwar developments is the launching of small small industries all over the country. Many of them are started by returning veterans, who probably conceived their ideas for new products while lying in a foxhole or while visiting foreign market places. In many cases, the man with the idea does all the work himself or he may have one or more persons to help him.

This postwar trend is also noted in Escanaba and other Upper Peninsula communities. One Escanaba man has started a little business with the manufacture of animal tethers; another is making toys and household items.

These are what may be called infant industries. Some of them may not be to grow larger than they are now. But some may expand, and will make new products and furnish employment to additional persons.

Henry Ford started his gigantic industrial empire in a small shop where he tinkered with the gasoline engine. Other large industries had very modest beginnings. Some communities have lost industries they failed to give encouragement to men with ideas. Other communities received the benefits because they offered to help in whatever way possible.

New UNO Site

THE good citizens of Greenwich, Conn., have made it very plain that they do not want to give up their homes for the cause of world peace. So, the UNO committee now appears disposed to look for another site, all of which should revive the hopes of Sault Ste. Marie, San Francisco and many other cities who waged vigorous campaigns for the headquarters location.

The Greenwich affair is somewhat amusing. Some of the staunchest supporters of internationalism and the United Nations Organization plan have their suburban homes in Greenwich, but when their humanitarian ideals meant the disorganization of their way of living it was another story.

Of course, no chamber of commerce invited the UNO to Greenwich. It would have been much better if it had accepted one of the many warm invitations. Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, chairman of the UNO headquarters committee, offers as an excuse for abandoning the Greenwich site that a much larger area is needed. Why not come to the Upper Peninsula, Dr. Gavrilovic? There is lots of room on the jack-pine plains all over this country.

Sister Kenny to Return

SISTER ELIZABETH KENNY, the Australian nurse whose system of treatment of infantile paralysis cases has revolutionized the medical approach to this dreaded disease in America, is returning to Australia to assist in combating an epidemic of polio in her homeland.

Sister Kenny's work in America has not been without opposition, despite the great humanitarian service that she has given to polio cases in this country. Several times it was feared that she would be forced to quit her work here because of organized forces opposing her.

In the announcement of her decision to return to Australia to aid in fighting polio in her homeland during the current epidemic there, it was gratifying to note that Sister Kenny plans to return to the United States in August, when the incidence of infantile paralysis annually reaches its highest level here.

Belated Reckoning

THE importance to the average citizen, and to the future of the United States as a democracy, of the Supreme Court's recent ruling denying to military authorities the right, even in wartime, to usurp the functions of civil courts cannot be over-estimated.

It reaffirms the unique pre-eminence in this nation of what jurists somewhat ambiguously refer to as the "rule of law." It holds aloft for all the world to see the fact that America, even in times of greatest peril, remains a government of just and established laws, rather than one of men or of military edicts. It proclaims in unmistakable language the democratic insistence upon civilian superiority over the military. And it serves stern warning upon all uniformed commanders and members of courts martial, present and future, that their acts and decisions, whatever the provocation or the exigency, are in no wise privileged or irrevocable.

The facts that the situation involved occurred in the Territory of Hawaii, rather than in the continental United States, and at a time when that territory was under martial law, but measurably heighten the dramatic effect of the pronouncement.

Unfortunately, the decision was belated—as, under the circumstances, it could not but have been. This redemption cannot restore to the two civilians affected the many long months they suffered in illegal imprisonment. But the reckoning is none the less sure for its tardiness.

IODINE AND GOITER IN MICHIGAN

(Grand Rapids Press)

The current issue of the state health department's official publication contains an article by Dr. O. P. Kimball on the use of iodized salt in Michigan and its relation to simple goiter. Lack of iodine, the author points out, is the sole cause of simple goiter. A few years ago it seemed that this point had become common knowledge, for with the increased use of iodized salt, the incidence of simple goiter sharply declined. Recently, however, that trend has been reversed.

In 1924 a survey revealed that 39 of every 100 Michigan children had simple goiter. In that year a statewide campaign was launched to stimulate the substituting of iodized salt for the common variety. By 1935 the incidence of simple goiter among children had been reduced to 8 per cent through the use of iodized salt. Among children who used it regularly only 2.9 per cent were found to have simple goiter.

Dr. Kimball's examinations of school children in the last two days have disclosed an increasing prevalence of goiter. In each case where goiter was found to exist, the doctor discovered that the child was not getting iodized salt, nor had he been for a year or more. Salt producers have reported a decreasing consumption of the iodized variety over the last four or five years.

Michigan's soil is among the poorest in iodine content. As a consequence, persons in this state do not get a natural and normal supply of iodine from their diet. It must be supplemented, and iodized salt has been found to be one of the easiest and best ways of obtaining an adequate amount of iodine regularly. Dr. Kimball's surveys have indicated that no child has ever suffered any ill effect from consuming iodized salt. There is, in fact, no prejudice against it. The reason it is not being used widely enough in Michigan today is probably that some of the facts cited by Dr. Kimball have been forgotten. Let this therefore be a reminder.

COMPARE TO? WITH?

Little Rock: "An argument has arisen in this office as to whether a thing is 'comparable to' or 'comparable with' any other thing. Your decision will be final, but be sure it is correct, Butch, for we have 'dough' bet on it."—C. C. B.

Answer: Butch? I resent that! The nickname is Slug.

However, one thing may compare either "to" or "with" another, depending on the meaning intended. It is not a question of grammar, but of the connotation (suggested significance) of the word compare. This may seem to be mere quibbling, but, since we may compare two things favorably or unfavorably, the distinction is preserved by use of "to" and "with," thus:

Favorable comparison: "Compare" plus "to," thus: His writing has been compared (favorably) to Poe's. Her voice is comparable (very similar) to Frances Langford's.

Unfavorable comparison: "Compare"

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—Having heard the nation's leading scientists, principal industrialists and chief members of the government, the Senate Atomic Energy committee recalled, as a final witness, Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, the man who happened to be the engineer in charge of construction in the atomic bomb project. It is a measure of the fear and timidity that dominate our thinking on atomic energy.

Groves is a West Pointer, an army engineer. He advanced by slow stages from rank to rank. For fifteen years, he was a first lieutenant.

The army engineers are an efficient, capable body of men who perform many useful tasks. Assigned to the atomic bomb project, Groves had an opportunity to prove his capacities in a phenomenal way, and he did prove himself.

—HAVE BEAR BY TAIL—

He is not a scientist. He is not an expert in government. He is not an industrialist. He is not a philosopher or a creative thinker. Yet eleven United States senators, presumably representing the seniority and the wisdom of the Senate, solemnly listened as he expounded his views on what to do with atomic energy in peacetime.

It was an extraordinary spectacle. The men with political responsibility have a bear by the tail. It's the biggest and most ferocious bear the world has ever seen. Helplessly, almost pathetically, they turn to the man who has fed the bear and brought it up to maturity.

Groves, in his wind-up before the committee, argued for keeping atomic energy the exclusive property of the military as a weapon of world destruction. That, when you pare it down, was what he said. He proposed a commission to be made up of five civilians and four military men, but the decisions of the commission could be vetoed by the joint chiefs of staff.

This is in opposition, as Groves acknowledged with the kind of good-natured impudence that characterized his testimony, to the stand taken by his commander-in-chief. President Truman has gone all out for the bill of Chairman McMahon of a Senate Atomic committee which would vest sole control of atomic energy in a full-time civilian commission representing the best brains and character we have.

But like so many things the President favors, he stops short with a nod of approval and a friendly pat on the head. Congress takes such gestures for what they are worth. It requires something more than that to get a bill through Congress which puts responsibility for atomic energy where it belongs—in the civil government of the United States.

—MUST BUILD UP SUPPORT—

It is by no means a perfect measure. It needs amending and safeguarding in several directions.

After it has been carefully revised, then the objective should be to get active support for it from both Democratic and Republican senators. A wise move would be to have it reintroduced with the names of two other Democrats and three Republicans added as co-sponsors. Then it would no longer have the slightest appearance of partisanship.

Something like this must be done quickly. Otherwise, through uncertainty and timidity, the bill that finally comes out of committee will make atomic energy a military weapon, with all that that means in rivalry between the nations.

That is the Groves pattern, the pattern of the military mind. It is clearly discernible in all that he says. It is the pattern of the days of the arguable and the sling.

"We've got it. We can keep ahead for a generation. Of course, if somebody has miscalculated and the world is blown up, then anyway there'll be nobody left to blame."

This last is the ultimate in Groves' irresponsibility. If the senate has no other answer, then we are bankrupt for sure.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson plans storage of meat. We'll be glad to lend a hand—and that comes from the bottom of our stomach.

A man may be a wise guy and still not know his place.

Most folks would rather meet a girl with expensive scents than million dollar airs.

Bareness from the waist up is the threatened fad for men. We're warning somebody—they better bring shirts back!

Most women have a keen sense of humor. The more you humor them the better they like it.

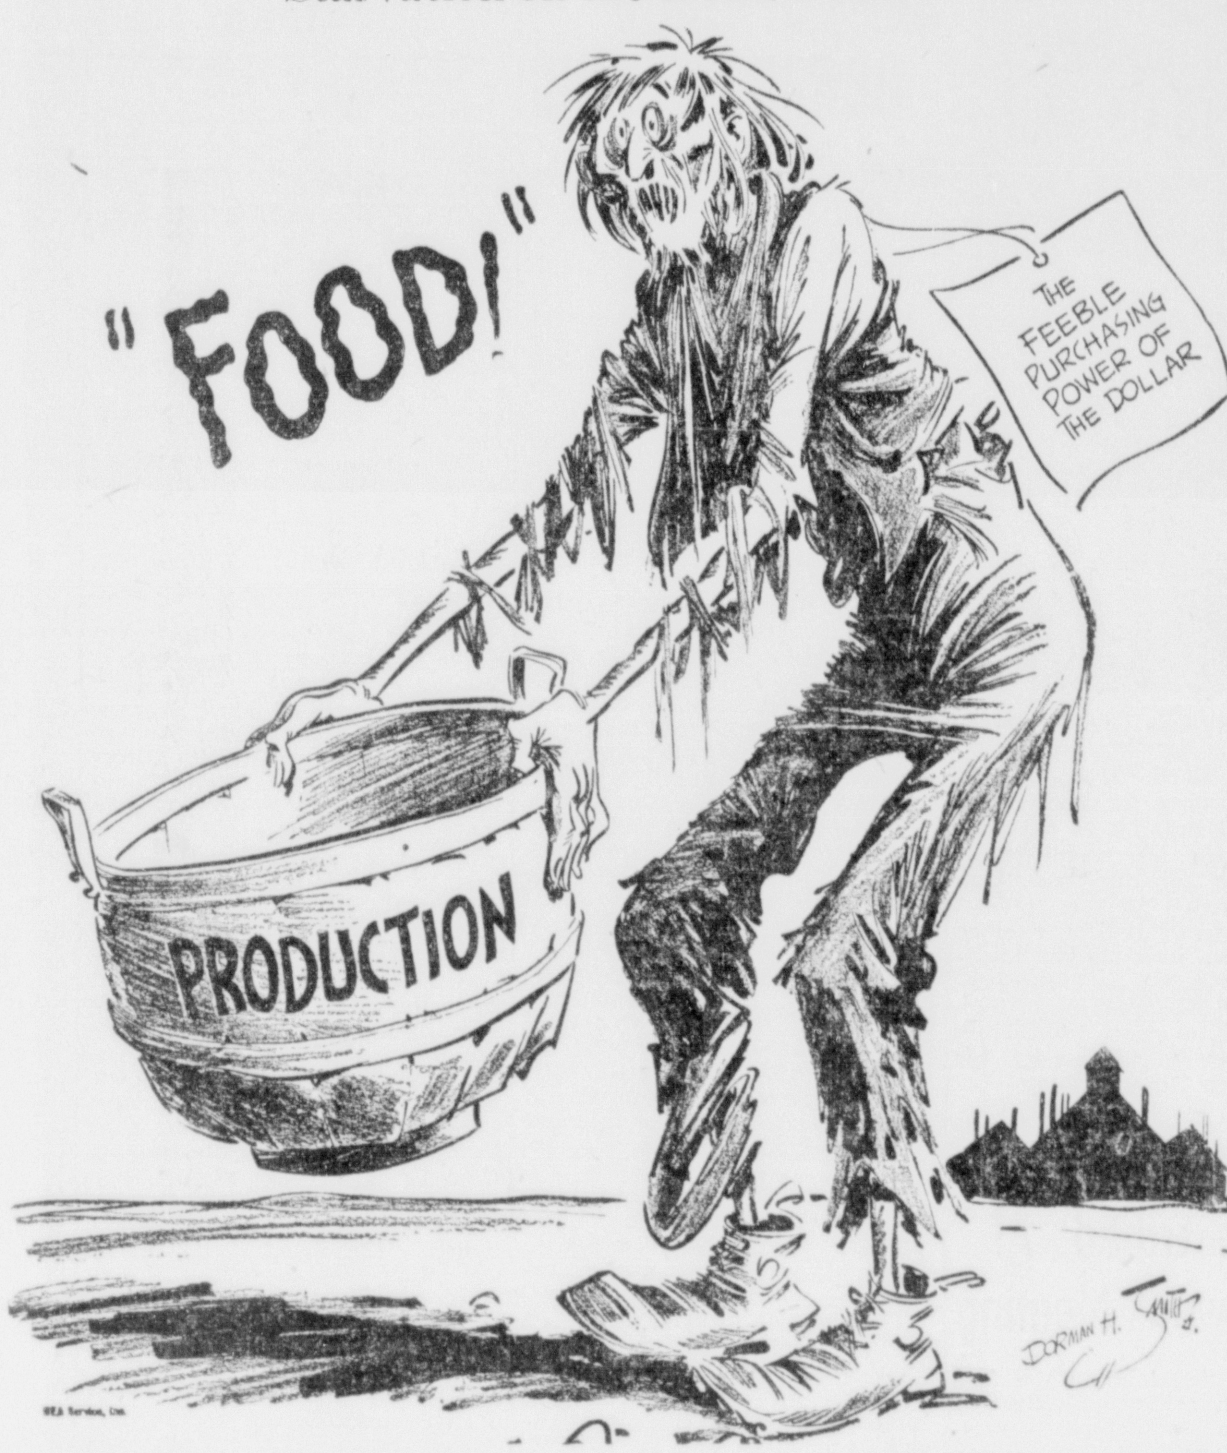

plus "with," thus: His poetry cannot be compared with Tennyson's. As a writer he does not compare with Hemingway. In no way is her singing comparable with Langford's.

Los Angeles: The superstition that it is ungrammatical to end a sentence with a preposition will doubtless be with us to the bitter end, despite your good efforts to explode the myth. Have you heard the one about the commanding officer who, on learning that one of his decisions had been criticized by his junior officers, posted a notice on the bulletin board which read: "This is a type of criticism up with which I shall not put?"—Mrs. F. L.

Answer: At the other extreme is the little girl mentioned, in Ernest Weekley's "Cruelty to Words" (E. P. Dutton & Co.), as being dissatisfied with the literary entertainment provided. She asks peevishly: "What did you bring that book for me to be read to out of from for?"

There is a happy medium, even in ending sentences with prepositions.

Starvation on the Home Front

Good Morning!

—By The Bugler

YOUNGEST GENERATION—Every so often you hear stories telling how courageous and self-reliant children were in pioneer days, and how times have changed. This is usually accompanied by a pessimistic shake of the head over this younger generation.

Given the opportunity, our boys and girls have just as much initiative as did Grandpa when he was a boy. If you need proof, take as example the case of David Schuster and Dickie Christensen, both six years old, and both kindergarten students at the Barr school in Escanaba.

Last Thursday morning (they attend kindergarten only in the afternoon), they decided to go sliding at the hills on the Escanaba Golf club. Leaving home about 9:30 o'clock, they were last seen "belly-flopping" along in the direction of the hills perhaps a mile away.

At the hills they sat on their sleds and went flying down the slopes, which are not high or steep. On one of the runs Dickie's sled tipped over—and his right leg was broken between the knee and the ankle. David helped him get onto his (Dickie's) sled, gave Dickie his sled to hold on his lap, and David began pushing him back to town.

There was no fuss and persons who saw them thought it was just two little boys having a good time playing. About noon Mrs. Ralph Christensen of 1016 Eight avenue south, Dickie's mother, received a telephone call from David. The boys were now at the home of David's mother, Mrs. Ardith Schuster. Dickie had hurt his leg, David said. Brought the rest of the way home by car, Dickie was taken to the hospital for treatment of his fractured leg, and then returned home.

To Dickie and David it was nothing particularly remarkable. "Dickie got his leg hurt and I brought him home," said the six-year-old David calmly.

THE NEW SUIT—An Escanaba business man in a moment of weakness purchased a new suit of heavy wool—the itchy kind. He wore it a few times and then put it away in a closet at a safe distance from his sensitive skin.

The other day his nephew returned home, discharged from the U. S. Marines and years of fighting in the Pacific area. Getting out of his uniform and into civies proved rather difficult because of the clothing shortage. The business man thought of his good wool suit and invited his nephew to try it on. It fit, and both men were pleased.

"Doesn't it make you itch?" asked the uncle.

"No," said the ex-Marine, "I've got leatherneck skin—all over."

WATER PUDDLES—There comes a pre-spring season of the year when to many children (and some oldsters) is one of the most fascinating of the year. There are no spring flowers, summer and its warmth is still far away, fall and the colored leaves are absent—yet March is a month with an attraction all its own.

One of the principal attractions is the water puddles that form on a warm day when the winter's accumulation of ice and snow begin to melt. Some storm sewers are clogged, and water backs up in the streets and along the sidewalks, providing problems in drainage for the entertainment of the adjoining "Tiger" Johnson, sensational right guard of the North Escanaba Rough House quintet, defeated the North Escanaba Athletic club five (with a little help from the rest of the team), by score of 18-12, in a fast game at the Webster gym.

A son was born yesterday at St. Francis hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Petersen.

J. E. Byrns left last night for Milwaukee.

Manistique—Little Jean Grimsley, Cedar street, was hostess at a party given at her home Friday in honor of her third birthday. Guests were seven little girls of the same age: Thelma Troyer, Jean Garrett, Lorraine Barker, Vivian Carlson, Merle and Doris Stephens, and Bernadine Claire.

Organization of the St. Joseph's Parent-Teacher association was effected at a meeting held at the St. Joseph school auditorium yesterday. Mr. L. P. Treiber was elected president, Mrs. George Fish, vice president, Mrs. F. T. Noonan, treasurer, and Mrs. A. F. Ale, secretary.

property owners.

Both children and adults come out with shovels, axes and other tools to dig little channels so the water may drain away. An occasional housewife joins the crews of workers, and on one street a lady was observed busily sweeping the water from her sidewalk with a broom. The young children are content to paddle around in the water with sticks, to push toy boats here and there—and to wade in the puddles with overshoes that either have holes or are too low for the deep spots. While it's good fun for the kids, mothers have a hard time keeping them supplied with dry clothing.

SLOW DOWN, PLEASE—Motorists also find the slushy streets a fine place to make a big splash, much to the annoyance of pedestrians who are attempting to cross at intersections.

More than one lady who went shopping before the weekend came home with her temper in high gear and spots on her treasured nylons. Motorists out of simple courtesy might very well take it easy at the corners where pedestrians must cross. It cannot be expected that the pedestrian can hurry very much, principally because of the hazard of ice underlying the water. One hurried step and more than nylons might need laundering.

While the motorist has a responsibility, the car driver will also cite the need for caution on the part of the pedestrian. Chief complaint of the car driver is that

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington — When Secretary Byrnes took over the helm of American foreign affairs, he found some high secret and amazing cablegrams in the state department which helped to explain our present straight — arm policy toward Fascist Spain.

Whether these cablegrams were ever shown to Cordell Hull or Edward Stettinius, who succeeded him, is not known. If so, they constitute a shocking indictment of a do-nothing policy despite evidence of bare-faced Spanish cooperation with Hitler and Argentina.

Here are the highlights of the story as told by the secret cables:

1. Great Britain at one time definitely played into the hands of the Argentine Fascists by supplying them airplanes.

2. Franco and his government were secretly aiding their friends in Argentina to build up a Nazi regime.

3. Spain not only was working hand-in-glove with the Germans all during the war, but the state department knew it; even knew the details of how information on Allied shipping was given to German submarines. Not only did the state department turn a deaf ear, but state department officials did not protest the shooting of Spanish republicans who had aided the escape of Allied prisoners.

All the above are contained in documentary form in the secret files of the state department.

—NAZI SPIES IN SOUTH AMERICA—

Another state department cable, dated Dec. 6, 1944, tells how Spain helped smuggle Nazi technicians and industrialists into Argentina and also set up a Nazi master plan for transferring funds, industrial information and personnel to Argentina. From their base in Argentina, the Nazis spread their network into other Latin American countries—all with the help of the Spanish Fascists.

To facilitate this, the Spanish ministry of foreign affairs even went to the extent of arranging with German consulates for German agents to falsely claim Argentina as their birth-place.

How the Spanish-Nazi-Argentine Axis operated was forcefully demonstrated in Colombia, where in 1944 a revolt was organized against President Lopez, a great friend of the USA. It has now developed that one important group behind this revolt was the Accion Cominado de Hispanidad, a subversive group of pro-Nazi Falangists organized by the Argentines and Germans via Spain. Regular contacts were maintained with them by Couriers from Spain.

Many of these reports, hitherto collecting dust in the state department, have now been laid before Secretary Byrnes and his Assistant Secretary, Spruille Braden. They are the reason for recent forthright policies toward Spain and Argentina.

Another back-stage reason for the state department's announcement last week that it had demanded a governmental change in Spain was word that Cardinal Spellman intended to lunch with Franco en route home from Rome. It was, therefore, thought wise to let the Cardinal know publicly that friendship with Franco was contrary to the policy of the American government.

—FRANCO HELPS U-BOATS—

State department cables regarding the close link between Spain and Germany are too numerous to detail here, and most incriminating. One problem all during the war was information regarding Allied ship movements which kept leading to Nazi submarines. This submarine activity was especially bad near Gibraltar, and American army men were certain that Spanish employees of the Siberia airlines, flying over the water, together with other falange agents, were supplying shipping information to the Nazis.

As late as January 1945, after increased ship sinkings off the Spanish Moroccan coast, an official American protest was made to the high commissioner in Spanish Morocco, General Orgaz. He was told (a) that German consuls in Spanish Morocco were given information regarding Allied ship movements; (b) that Falangist intelligence circles were in direct contact with Axis intelligence; and (c) that Axis submarines had contacts on the Spanish coast.

General Orgaz denied everything.

A few days later, however, an American official led Spanish officials to a secret Spanish observation post equipped with radio transmitters, code books and copies of messages to German U-boats. This incident was reported to the state and war departments in cables dated Feb. 19 and 21, 1945. The state department at that time was letting Jimmy Dunn govern its Spanish policy. Nothing happened.

Inside fact is that some state department officials, prior to the Byrnes administration, appeared to be sympathetic toward Franco.

On Aug. 3, 1944, for instance, three Spaniards were executed by Franco at Melilla as a penalty for aiding the escape of Allied prisoners. The three Spaniards were Republicans and opposed to the pro-Axis policy of Franco.

Up until the end, it was expected that American consular officials in Spain would intervene to save them. But not one finger was lifted. The gentlemen of the state department, at that time, were not interested in helping those who had helped Americans—if it got them in wrong with Franco.

PAPER HOUSE AT MADISON

Wisconsin Rapids Firm
Develops New Plastic
Building Material

Madison, Wis.—Paper homes may solve the nation's tremendous demand for low-cost permanent houses that can be built in a short time.

Recent experiments by the Consolidated Water Power and Paper Company, of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., have resulted in a paper plastic building material known as Consoweld, which is said to be stronger and more fire-resistant than wood and more enduring in some respects than steel, although it is comparable in weight to aluminum.

A sample three-room cottage, built almost entirely of this material, has been set up for tests. Except for a simple concrete foundation, the entire building was carried to its location on a single truck, including walls, ceilings, partitions, stove, sink, icebox, oil heater and plumbing fixtures, and was set up in a small fraction of the time needed to build a three-room cottage of conventional type.

The firm has also designed a "packed" bathroom, complete with walls and plumbing fixtures, which may enable rural dwellers to acquire modern conveniences by simply ordering a complete bathroom which will come to them in one carton.

Consoweld consists of two panels of hard, compressed paper impregnated with resin and held apart by wood strips. The space between the panels is filled with a fuzzy gray corrugated paper core, which insulates and soundproofs walls and doors.

Officials of the company state that they are not in a hurry to place their new product on the market, because they want to be certain that it is "just right" when they do. They are in the process of establishing specifications, they say, and these are not yet available for publication.

Ishpeming Gold Mining Equipment Going To Ontario

The equipment that served the Michigan gold mine, located three miles northwest of Ishpeming, Mich., has been sold to J. J. Grey, of Toronto, and two car loads of machinery and equipment are now being loaded to an Ontario gold mine. The Michigan gold mine property is owned by the Michigan Quartz Silica of Milwaukee, Wis., and comprises 80 acres. A final court hearing on the property will take place in the Marquette county court house on March 4.

The gold belt, located just north of Ishpeming, is the lowest member of the Archean rocks in which are found occurrences of native gold in quartz and also in sulphides in schist near the contact of the Peridotite dyke. The Ropes gold mine nearby, also, is owned by the Calumet & Hecla Consolidated Copper Co., is located on the same formation, a few miles of the Michigan gold mine shaft.

The shaft of the Michigan gold mine is about 300 feet deep. In 1936 equipment installed for the milling facilities included a six-cell flotation machine, a classifier, a mineral jig, and an agitator. The mill commenced operation in October of 1936 with a capacity of 50 tons per day. At the time, H. B. King was president of the Michigan Gold Mining Co., Roy E. Swift, of Colorado was mill superintendent and assayer.

In 1936 three interests were active in this gold belt, along the north side of the Marquette range. The Calumet & Hecla had already dewatered the Ropes mine for examination and diamond drilling was active that year on the east forty of the Ropes property. In 1936 the Norgan Gold Mining Co. made examination of properties over a large area of the Michigan gold belt during the summer months. The men in the field for this interest at the time were Carl Lamey, Stanley A. Taylor, Olaf Johnson, geologists, Frank Bopp, Gordon Hautau, Gordon Pringle, Leslie Olmsted and Robert Edwards. The Michigan Gold Mining Co. was third largest interest active.

Pope Pius Celebrates Seventieth Birthday

EDITOR'S NOTE—The Rev. John LaFarge, S. J., is editor in chief of the national Catholic weekly, "America." He has written a number of books, including "The Jesuits in Modern Times" and "The Race Question and the Negro." He is active in many Catholic organizations, is former vice president of the American Catholic Historical Association and a director of the Catholic Association for International Peace. During a tour of Europe in 1938, just before war broke out, Father LaFarge had an audience with Pope Pius XI. He is familiar with Papal policy, present and historic.

By REV. JOHN LAFARGE, S. J.
(Written for NEA Service)

New York, (NEA)—When on his seventieth birthday Saturday, the name of Pope Pius XII was mentioned, people doubtless thought of an erect, white-robed figure, seated peacefully in the Vatican's Hall of Consistory and greeting the latest wearers of a Cardinal's purple robes.

But in my own mind's eye the name of Pius arouses three visions in particular.

I see in 1936 a handful of missionary nuns, Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Negroes and Indians, emerge from their battered automobile in the heart of the Arizona desert, and kneel in surprised reverence before the Papal Legate, Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, as his plane stops for fueling in the course of the first visit any future Pope ever made to the United States.

Then, in the chill of a cloudy spring evening at the World Eucharistic Congress in 1938, the same Cardinal Pacelli kneels in silent adoration before the sacramental Saviour, Host and adorer both, enclosed in a brilliantly lighted brass chamber upon the upper deck of a steamer, while behind the physical clouds lurks the terror, in near-by Germany, of Hitler's warfare on Christianity. Moving swiftly over the dark waters of the troubled Danube the Legate prays that God's hand may yet intervene in the Reich which he came to know so well during his six years as Papal Nuncio at Munich before he became Papal Secretary of State.

Finally, I see him as Pope, standing amid a terrified crowd upon the cobblestones of the Roman Trastevere, just after the bombing of Rome in the recent war. His face is raised and his arms stretched up to Heaven, as he passionately thanks God that even worse did not come, as he implores Divine protection for Romans and for all people during the terrible days yet to come.

Justice and Charity. But whether he is seated, or kneels, or stands erect; whether he strolls easily and joyously among the thousands of GI's unceremoniously thronging the ceremonial halls of the Vatican, this churchman is inspired by one incessant and never-relaxing aim. With a mind fixed upon human unity, as the key problem of the present time, he will leave no stone unturned, no instrument, human or divine, untried, which can possibly help to organize the natural society of mankind upon the basis of justice and charity.

As a means to that end, he demands the restoration of the "complete man," complete as a religious believer and as a citizen, with a citizen's sense of responsibility in a democracy. Pius XII, on Christmas, 1944, proclaimed democracy as the only type of government suited to our times, the only type which will successfully oppose totalitarian tyranny.

The 70 years of Pope Pius' life have moved with a remarkable logic toward the unique position where he now finds himself in the field of religious and moral leadership. Born of a family of aristocratic jurists in Rome, on March 2, 1876, Eugenio Pacelli trained himself for the doctorate in theology, philosophy and law at Capranica College in Rome, where in 1899 he was ordained a priest. From that time on, his career was a steady progression in the field of ecclesiastical jurisprudence and the diplomatic service of the Catholic Church, in its constant efforts to safeguard the interests of religion through contacts and contracts with governments of all kinds, friendly and hostile. As Papal Secretary of State under his predecessor, Pope Pius XI, Cardinal Pacelli became, as is popularly said, the "best informed man in the world."

Today, he says, the Church "cannot cut herself off, inert in the privacy of her churches," and thus neglect the work of God which he wants her to do for the good of society. Laymen, says Pius, are not only IN the Church, but they ARE the Church, and need to learn and practice their immense responsibilities.

Urges Equality

On the firm basis of his conservative Roman origin and training, Pius XII has boldly broken with many a hoary precedent. He calls for the cooperation of all men of good will to save the pillars of society, the family and the state, in the chaos of the present crisis. He never ceases to urge and practice racial equality, and is determined to vindicate the supra-natural character of the Church. Finally, he is deeply convinced of the part God has allotted to the United States in the salvation and rehabilitation of the world. If the men of good will, to whom he so movingly appeals, will listen to the sober, practical advice of this great leader, we have some hope of being spared the horrors of another war. If we bodily reject his well-considered, Gospel-drawn counsel, no way appears possible by which the world can be preserved from a self-inflicted destruction.

Fur Farm Business Interests Veterans

Lausling—Increasing interest in fur farming as a postwar business is reported by the conservation department.

Returning servicemen and factory workers in large numbers are seeking information or licenses for fur farms from the department's game division.

Principal interest is in mink which is one of the two species which can be raised profitably behind wire. Foxes are the other.

Mink raising supervision is a department responsibility inasmuch as mink is a protected species. Foxes are not protected and no agency, state or federal, supervises fox raising activity in Michigan.

The department issues breeders' licenses, renewable annually, and domestic mink farm licenses which continue in effect so long as licensees observe certain regulatory provisos.

Mindful of unhappy experiences of many investors in fur farming ventures following World War I, the department is scrutinizing license applications carefully. The Michigan Corporation and Securities Commission also is on guard

Bishop Wagner Gives Rules For Lenten Season

Because of unsettled conditions and the continued food shortage, the general dispensation in fast and abstinence during Lent, which was granted Catholics during the war, has been renewed for the diocese of Marquette, it is stated in a letter from Bishop Francis J. Wagner, read at Sunday's masses in Catholic churches of the Upper Peninsula.

"It will only be necessary," the bishop said, "to observe the usual Friday abstinence from flesh meat and to observe fast and abstinence on Ash Wednesday, Good Friday and the forenoon of Holy Saturday."

However, Bishop Wagner urges Catholics to observe the spirit of the Lenten season by performing "some special work of charity and devotion by their contributions to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and by attending daily mass, if possible, and special devotions which pastors will conduct."

Lent begins on Ash Wednesday, March 6, one of the latest possible dates since Easter, which sets the Lenten period, is on April 21 this year. The latest possible date for Easter is April 23.

The special mark of Ash Wednesday is imposition of ashes on the foreheads of worshippers. Blessing and distribution of the ashes in St. Peter's cathedral will take place before 8 a. m. Wednesday morning, with additional distribution at 3:30 and 7:30 p. m. when benediction also will be conducted.

Expectant Mothers
Need Good Diet

BY WILLIAM A. O'BRIEN, M. D.
Written for N.E. Service

Expectant mothers need plenty good food, as their baby obtains his food at their expense. The daily diet of the mother-to-be should consist of a generous serving of meat, including liver once a week, a quart of pasteurized milk, one ounce of butter, one fresh vegetable, one green leafy vegetable, one cooked vegetable, generous amounts of citrus fruits or their equivalent, one egg, and whole grain cereal or enriched bread. Extra vitamins in addition to those in their food should be taken only on the advice of the physician.

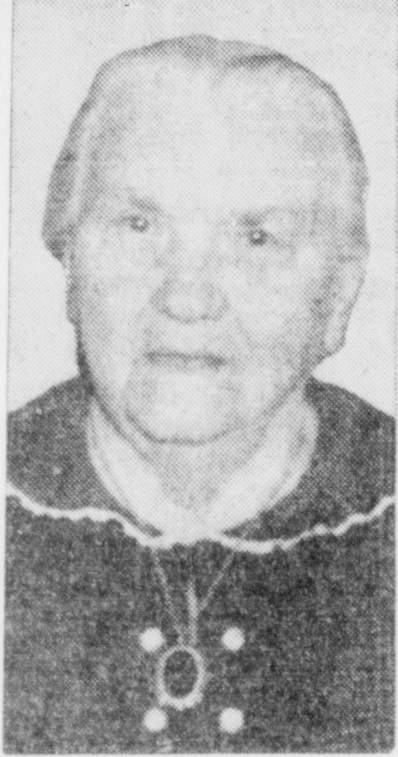

An expectant mother stores food to tide over both herself and her baby for a possible rainy day. If the emergency does not develop, the extra stores are eliminated after the baby is born. Water storage is a good example of this, as a good deal of the weight gained during pregnancy is water. Rapid weight loss following the birth of the baby is largely water loss. Expectant mothers also store nitrogen, and probably iron, calcium, some vitamins, and certain other food essentials.

There is no rule of thumb for prescribing a diet for all expectant mothers. Each one is an individual problem, and this is the reason our nutrition standards may fall short of being the ideal.

Heavy Women Eat Less

The average pregnant woman needs about 2500 calories a day. Those who do heavy work need more food, but those who take it easy, and those who are overweight should eat less. Sugar and fat increase weight, while eating less sugar and fat reduces weight. A great many women allow themselves to become too fat during pregnancy. Although there should be some gain in weight from natural causes, after the baby is born the mother should weigh approximately the same as she did before she became pregnant.

Expectant mothers were formerly advised to eat less meat during pregnancy to reduce the protein in their diet. Actually, they need more protein. This is best supplied by meat, milk, and eggs. Physicians no longer believe that meat harms the kidneys. In both normal and complicated pregnancies, expectant mothers should eat liberal quantities of protein every day.

Watch Your Teeth
Should you take calcium to protect your teeth? Most physicians advise their patients to see their dentists and have all cavities filled. Women formerly lost teeth after childbirth because they did not go to the dentist during pregnancy. Unless you have teeth in excellent condition, staying away from the dentist for nearly a year will allow advanced decay to develop. One quart of pasteurized milk every day supplies most of the calcium needed by the average expectant mother.

In Hollywood

BY FRANK JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

Hollywood, (NEA)—Someone was congratulating Eve Arden on being the dark horse in the Academy Award supporting role race for her performance in "Mildred Pierce." "Look," pouted Eve, "when I wear a new gown, they call me a clothes horse. When I give a good performance, they call me a dark horse. Why don't they simply put blinkers on me and enter me at Santa Anita?"

Lillian Fontaine, mother of Joan Fontaine and Olivia de Havilland, will play the role of Paulette Goddard's mother in "Suddenly It's Spring." Lillian has never played the mother of her own daughters because Hollywood says she isn't the type. Peggy Cummings, the trotter with the wallop in "Forever Amber," will be seen on the screen soon in a British film, "English Without Tears." She appeared in the picture while starring in the London stage version of "Junior Miss."

Sight of the week: Betty Grable in a white nylon nightgown for a scene in "The Shocking Miss Pilgrim." We knew that OPA ruling making nightgowns non-essential would never work in Hollywood. Jack Kirkwood's latest candidate in the screwy song title derby: "She Called Him Silly Billy but She Loved Him Willy Nilly."

Boyer Seeks Play

Charles Boyer is casting around for a stage play to take him back to Broadway. Twentieth Century-Fox will use the same semi-documentary approach in filming "32 Rue Madeleine" as it did in "The House on 92nd Street." It will be the story of the Office of Strategic Services and its agents behind enemy lines.

Reginald Gardner is climbing up the royal ladder. In "The Dolly Sisters" he played an English duke. In "Forever Amber" he'll be a king.

★ Perhaps overeating is the most common dietary indiscretion. The natural result of overeating is obesity. It has been said that we in America eat ourselves into a premature grave. The pendulum then frequently swings back to the other extreme. We go on a diet. Many self-imposed reducing diets wouldn't keep a bird alive, and often serious vitamin, mineral, and protein deficiencies result.

In recent years great strides have been made in our knowledge of nutrition. For the maintenance of optimal health one must be assured that proper balance of various foods is maintained. For dietary advice of any kind see your physician. You can then be certain that all bodily needs are being adequately met. Bring your prescriptions to us.

KNOW WHY SOAP'S SO SCARCE? It's because our country is so short of fats needed to make the soaps you want (and to make other peacetime goods, too). Yes! Even though food fats are more plentiful now, our supply of industrial fats is still critically low. But you can help put more soap back in the stores sooner . . . by saving used fats! Be Matched With Local Boys

Manistique boxers, who made such a commendable showing at the recent Golden Gloves tournament at Escanaba, will have a chance to show home folks what they can do.

Through an arrangement, negotiated through Clint Leonard, on behalf of the Manistique Lions club, use of the Manistique high school gymnasium has been secured for the evening of April 8 and an inter-city match between youthful leather pushers from Escanaba and Manistique will be presented.

Ken Gunderman, on behalf of the Escanaba Lions club, will engage boxers from that city.

The purpose of the boxing show is to raise funds for gymnasium equipment such as gloves, punching bags, a mat and a ring, all of which are badly needed for training purposes.

At present rooms in the youth center are at the disposal of the young fighters, but there is little equipment to work with.

Competition for Len Sharkey, the local boy who proved to be the big sensation at Escanaba, will probably come from Iron Mountain or Sault Ste. Marie; but the other matches will be strictly talent from here and Escanaba.

Appeal For Clothes
Gets Good Response

Very gratifying response of the appeal in Sunday's issue of the Press for clothing and household goods, is reported by Mrs. Lottie Weber, county welfare agent. Among the items received were two mattresses, a bed spring, a chest of drawers, many items of clothing and $10 in cash.

A few more items of clothing would help, Mrs. Weber says. Also needed is some more bedding and a kerosene lamp or two. Mrs. Weber states that she was mistaken about the size of clothing needed for Mrs. Clifton. She wears size 40 dresses.

The appeal was in behalf of the William Clifton family of Cooks, who lost everything in a fire that destroyed their home last week. A new home has been located but will not be ready for occupancy for a few days.

LEGION HOLDS INITIATION

Largest Class In History
Of Local Organization
Is Received

The aims and purposes of the American Legion were impressively exemplified at initiation ceremonies held at the high school gymnasium Sunday afternoon when a class of seventy veterans of World War II were initiated into that organization.

Assisting with the work were Elmer Olson, of Escanaba, who presided as commander; Richard W. Nebel, of Munising, as first vice commander; Elmer St. Martin, Escanaba, second vice commander; Dr. A. R. Tucker, pastor; J. R. Lowell, chaplain, and Emery Barnes, sergeant at arms, all of Manistique.

The meeting opened in customary form with Harvey Quick in charge as commander. He in turn, turned it over to Elmer Olson who presided during the ceremony.

The high school orchestra, under the direction of Carl Olson, added to the effectiveness of the program with musical numbers. The ceremony was open to the public.

Following the ceremony Richard Nebel and Elmer Olson addressed the gathering. Nebel spoke on the work the American Legion has ahead of it and emphasized the important part each member must play in making the work of the organization effective. He also told the gathering that the coming U. S. Peninsula Legion convention will be held in Manistique in July and will be by far the largest convention ever held in this part of the state. Olson stressed the fraternal quality of American Legion membership. He also took occasion to praise the Manistique post for the great increase in membership that has been effected and the high quality of this membership.

Pleads Guilty To Non-Support Charge

Up to late Monday afternoon Knuth had not secured bondsmen and was committed to jail.

Mrs. Knuth, his wife, the complaining witness, stated that he had contributed but $17 toward the family support in the past two months.

Sooner or later I knew those gorillas would drop their guard, and when Shorty was bringing another log for the fire...

It happened too fast for Louise to get a good shot at me. The dark went and Shorty went through the window.

HEY, SHORTY! WHERE DID THAT GUY GO?

Scrambled through the window just as flames shot up from the overturned lamp.

ANIMATED PIX
TALK SUBJECT

Hollywood Cartoonist Is
Speaker At Rotary
Meeting

Rotarians got an insight into the manner in which animated cartoons are made when Francis "Frank" Smith, cartoonist now on leave from Universal Studios, Hollywood, appeared before them.

Smith, who has several other brothers who are also cartoonists, is a Gladstone boy.

The speaker traced the history of animated pictures and of the moving or motion pictures. He pointed out that even the Egyptians of ancient times used animated pictures. One instance recorded is where dancers in various poses were painted on pillars and to view them properly or get the sensation of motion a person rode by in a chariot wearing a helmet or shield that had only a slit in the center which cut down the field of view.

While Disney is generally given credit for creating animated pictures, Smith said, this is not true although Disney has probably done more than any one man to develop the art. He expressed the opinion that it is a field the surface of which has barely been scratched despite the seeming perfection of Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Gulliver's Travels" which was produced by Fleischer Studios.

He told Rotarians that the motion and animated picture art are purely American contributions to the art world.

To illustrate his talk he showed a set of 12 pictures or drawings which depicted a woodpecker taking a nap.

He also drew with pencil a series of drawings showing a cartoon character jumping and did several humorous crayon sketches.

TOWN FORGOT TO VOTE

Timnath, Colo. (P)—Residents of this town of 860 persons will regain their local vote in an election April 2—the first since 1936 Mayor Robert H. Watts, setting the date, said the main reason there had been no election was because no one thought to mention the matter.

HIGH COST OF LITERACY

Las Cruces, N. M. (P)—Charles Knight parked his automobile on the city's main street to step into a store to buy a newspaper. It was expensive reading. When he came out his car was gone.

Famous Marinette Bar Being Razed

Marinette, Mich. — On its way into oblivion is one of Marinette's oldest landmarks, the building at 2005 Hall avenue, which just prior to the turn of the century bore the reputation of being one of the "hottest spots" north of Milwaukee. It is the building formerly occupied by the late Jack Dowling's Sociable buffet.

Wrecking of the building has been started to make room for expansion of Grinnell Motors. When lumber was king in this territory, Jack Brennan came here from Green Bay during the 1880's and constructed the building which became famous among the lumberjacks as "Jack Brennan's place." When the huge river drives were ended, Brennan was ready for the lumber workers. Hall avenue was busy as lumberjacks hurried to see the stage shows presented on the platform at the rear of the Brennan saloon.

At times when the stage wasn't vibrating to the songs and dances of the floor show dancers, there were boxing bouts to entertain the patrons. And when the stake was spent, there were agents who maintained offices at the place to find jobs for the lumberjacks, who would disappear into the woods for several months before returning to the frivolity of Jack Brennan's.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hildebrand yesterday noon entertained the Escanaba Rotary Club at its meeting at the Delta hotel, with Rotarian Hildebrand leading the club members in group singing. Mr. and Mrs. Hildebrand sang several solos, and joined their voices in two duets. The singing was accompanied by Mrs. Hildebrand at the piano.

AUTO STRIKES TREE

Iron Mountain—Jack Erickson, 22, (P.C.), nephew of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hebert, Kingsford Heights, was killed when the car he was driving, enroute from Oshkosh to Fond du Lac, went out of control two miles south of Oshkosh.

Erickson, who reenlisted in January after serving 32 months in the China-Burma-India theater, was in Fond du Lac on furlough, called there because of the death, a week ago, of his mother.

STOLE SEVEN AUTOS

Marquette—Escape and recapture, four hours later, of 16-year-old Donald Crosciere, Spring street, Saturday marked the latest escapade that took the Marquette youth through the central and northwestern parts of the Upper Peninsula and into Wisconsin.

Arrested in Green Bay on Feb. 28, and returned to this city, Crosciere, implicating a 16-year-old Big Bay girl and another Marquette youth, admitted to Chief Donald McCormick he was responsible for the theft of seven cars in Marquette, Gladstone and Ishpeming.

His companions were arrested the following day, Grace Marie Barger, Big Bay, being taken into custody at Allouez, in the Copper Country, and Lawrence Swenor, 18, Seymour avenue, being seized in Marquette. Admitting their parts in the car thefts, the pair, along with Crosciere, were placed in the county juvenile detention home at Spring and Fourth streets.

ADMITS ASSAULT CHARGE

Iron Mountain—John Thomas, 39, of Iron Mountain, charged with assault with intent to kill, and robbery, after admitting that at about 9 o'clock Thursday night he struck Pat Angeli, 71, bartender at the Highway Inn, Florence county, with a meat-cleaver and then robbed the cash register of about $200, waived preliminary examination when arraigned yesterday before Irving Smith, county judge, at Florence, and was brought to the county jail here, where he remained for about four hours before being transferred to the Marinette county jail, to await trial.
